The T2 Hangar and the Romney hut are the last vestiges of the Boreham Airfield from WW2, they deserve to be saved and enjoyed by future generations.

But what to do with them?

We think we have the solution - A heritage site, that encompasses both existing buildings and incorporates some additional assets.

We would like to turn the T2 Hangar into a heritage area and museum. This would allow displays of vehicles as well as other associated equipment, a storage and conservation area, a display telling the history of Ford at the site and importantly an area for education.

Suggestions have been made regarding also relocating the 1949 memorial here, and the Bailey Bridge, that was formally in Chelmsford to the site in a suitable landscaped setting.

This would bring heritage that is also at risk into one area for preservation and conservation.
